After an accidental shooting in a vehicle injured an Eminence man Feb. 26, the resulting investigation led to charges against two others in burglaries and thefts both here and in Covington in Northern Kentucky, according to an Eminence police report.

Taking action to improve the community, Leadership Henry County Class of 2014 has launched a project to make the pond at the new park more accessible to the public.

Among the beneficiaries of the 140-foot-long and 4-foot-wide path that ends in a 12-by-15 foot landing at the pond will be the residents of Cedar Lake Park Place.

Being located at the Henry County Recreation and Services Park already provides many opportunities for residents at Cedar Lake to engage in activities, including using the walking path, watching sports teams using the ball fields and using the playground, said Tish Stewart, the director of

Missing Pieces

Time has obscured details of the New Castle Locker's past

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

If a picture is worth a thousand words, then the history of the Locker in New Castle could tell itself through two intriguing early 20th century photos.

To be sure, one can infer a lot about a past incarnation of the building from the early photograph: painted on the front in big block letters, it once said "The New Castle Implement Co." over the expansive plate glass windows. Three gentlemen stood on the sidewalk in front of the door to the for the photo. Henry County historians identify the men as, from left, A. Thornton Ellis, his father Harvey Stone Ellis and employee Jimmy Peale.

The store catered to the farmers of the community, with its offers of harvesting machines and what looks like the International Harvester symbol and Weber Apparently when building users needed more space in the front, they resorted to sheering off two vertical posts in the front and then provided support with metal bars underneath.

Trevor Payton selected as a Coca-Cola Scholarship Foundation winner

SUBMITTED

Trevor Payton, shown here in class during a governor's scholar program, recently received a $20,000 scholarship from the Coca-Cola Scholarship Foundation.

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

A fitness project founded by an Eminence student four years ago led him to swear off high-calorie drinks. It also contributed to his receiving $20,000 from the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation.

Each year, the foundation provides $3 million worth of awards to 150 students out of the more than 100,000 who apply, according to information from its website at <http://coca-colascholars.org/>.

The scholarship will assist Eminence High School senior Trevor Payton as he heads to the University of Kentucky to begin his biology/pre med track this fall with a goal of going into sports medicine.

"Since 1989, the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation has helped dreams come true for more than 5,400 outstanding students," according to the foundation's website. "In high school, these students began their journey of academic excellence, positive leadership and dedication to service. They are continuing throughout their careers to serve others and realize their full potential to change the world and create an enduring legacy."

"The irony of it is I haven't had a soft drink in probably five years," Payton said. "I literally drink nothing but water. I'm glad that wasn't a requirement, that you had to drink Coke."

Scholarship recipients advance through a three-step selection process, beginning with an online application listing their community service, clubs and activities; on to a second round in which they write five essays; and the third involves a 20-minute Skype interview with a committee of former scholarship recipients.

Payton listed his four years as class president

HISTORY OF THE WASHINGTON LODGE RECOGNIZED

MELISSA BLANKENSHIP/LOCAL

In honor of Black History Month and in recognition of the long-standing Odd Fellows Washington Lodge 1513, Henry County Judge-Executive John Logan Brent recently signed a proclamation declaring Feb. 18, 2015 to be Odd Fellows Day in Henry County. The Odd Fellows Washington Lodge 1513 was established 144 years ago and its former meeting place in New Castle is one of the oldest buildings in the county. The members of the organization are embarking on a campaign to save and restore the building, a rare example of ownership of a small town Main Street building by an African-American civic organization. Brent's proclamation speaks to the commitment to and the betterment of the community through the Odd Fellows' service and to the fact that the organization builds pride in Henry County by holding to their traditions. Seated from left to right are Billy Kiphart, Henry County Judge-Executive John Logan Brent and William H. Goodloe. Standing from left to right are Richard Smith, James Goodloe, Joe Wright and George Foree.

and time as student council president. Many activities he participated in, from trash pickups to fundraising, arose from his time serving as a class officer and on student council.

He has played football, baseball and basketball. Working with youth sports, Payton has coached one of the local little league baseball teams, as well as the Eminence sixth grade boys' basketball team.

Payton has also been active with the youth group and with vacation Bible school at Henry Christian Church.

He also has assisted with Operation Christmas Child, the shoebox ministry with the mission of delivering presents to several different countries.

And with the cooperation of UK alums, including his cousin, Payton started a get-fit, healthy lifestyle initiative in Eminence.

His cousin, while they both attended college, became friends with Randall Cobb, who went on from UK to distinguish himself as a Green Bay Packers wide receiver. Cobb agreed to come to Eminence and speak to the students about the importance of staying active and healthy.

"I read a statistic that 30 percent of kids under the age of 12 are obese, so it kind of just hit home," Payton recalled. "I felt, obviously, things need to get better. I felt like no better person could help us do that than Randall Cobb, so I invited him. The kids loved him, the school loved him."

Payton also took the healthy-living advice and cut certain things out of his diet. "It's been tough — I'd like to have a sweet tea every now and then."

In addition to the scholarship, Payton will also receive an all-expense-paid trip to Atlanta April 16 to 19 for a leadership conference, as well as doing a community service project at a food bank there.

Payton feels honored to be included in this year's list of scholars. From his communications with other winners through social media, his fellow recipients range from future NASA scientists to those with political aspirations.

The interview was the most challenging part of the application process, he said.

"It was more thought provoking, I would say," Payton explained. "The questions are about you, of course, but they go more in-depth about what you put in your application and how your thought process is."

One interviewer asked what Payton thinks it will be like when he as class president plans his class reunion in 10 years. Another interviewer asked what was the most creative thought Payton ever had.

He had to think carefully about both answers, Payton said. About his most creative thought, Payton responded that it wasn't any one thought, but a culmination of everything he'd learned and tried to put into action over the years in his community service.

The Coca-Cola scholarship combined with his Kentucky governor's scholarship will help him tremendously when he attends UK.

"I tried to pick for myself, but my grandfather, my two uncles, my older cousin, who I look up to very much, they all graduated from UK," Payton said. "I kind of wanted to keep it in the family. I've always been a huge UK athletics fan, so everything there just seemed perfect for me and all the opportunities that they give."

Payton has already selected what he wants to do for his career and has been working toward his goal through an internship with Dr. Paul McKee, an orthopedic sports medicine specialist.

The internship has given Payton insight into how doctors work with their patients, what business skills are needed and what it takes to run an office. The internship has helped him work toward his goal of becoming a doctor for a college or professional athletics team.

After graduating from Eminence this spring, Payton plans to participate in UK's PEPP program for pre-med students, where for four weeks he'll get to observe surgeries, attend seminars on medical procedures and terminology and study chemistry and biology.

Payton appreciates the opportunities that attending his school of choice will give him. The scholarship will go 100 percent towards his college education.

"I'm elated," he said. "It was an incredible feeling to get this honor."

Fairgrounds alcohol penalty to be financial

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

Law enforcement officers won't become a permanent fixture at the 4-H Fairgrounds to keep alcohol off the premises for weekend parties. Instead, Henry County can use a financial penalty against flagrant violators.

The parks committee, led by Magistrate Jason Stanley, met to review the use of the 4-H building for private parties prior to the fiscal court's full meeting Feb. 17, but the committee did not recommend any outright penalties against people who ignored the fair-ground's ban on alcohol. The committee members only recommended to the fiscal court increasing the rental and the deposit fees that had been in place since 2005.

The larger space would increase from $100 to $150 and the smaller part would rise from $75 to $100, if the fiscal court approved, Stanley reported. The deposit would also go up from $50 to $100.

The committee could keep the deposit if the renters don't clean up after themselves.

Judge-Executive John Logan Brent asked if the committee had any ideas about enforcing the rules against alcohol consumption at the fairgrounds. Brent had sparked the discussion at fiscal court's January meeting, at which time county officials discussed the possibility of having off-duty sheriff's office deputies monitor weekend parties with the goal of keeping alcohol out.

The committee had discussed the alcohol concerns at its meeting, including the idea the county could be held liable if anyone at the fairgrounds got injured, Stanley confirmed. Those concerns were alleviated when Stanley talked to the county's insurance provider.

As previously discussed, the county's rental contract specifically prohibits the use of alcohol at the fairgrounds property, and this is pointed out to users.

"We asked KACo [Kentucky Association of Counties] about it, our insurance," Stanley reported. "They said as long as we had it in our contract and they know that they're not supposed to have it, they couldn't see us being liable. That was our main concern, just being liable if something happened."

Brent then asked if the county would keep the deposit if evidence of alcohol consumption was found at the 4-H building.

"I think we'll have to use our judgment," Magistrate Nick Hawkins said. "If there's three kegs and 100 beer bottles, probably, but if you've got a few beer cans thrown in the garbage, I wouldn't worry so much about it."

"It's never good to discriminate, though," County Attorney Virginia Harrod responded. "It has to be all or nothing. Because, then, you're accused of picking and choosing."

Hawkins explained the thinking on the presence of a law enforcement officer at private functions. "We didn't think it would be appropriate to send a police officer to every person's wedding reception to walk through and do a sweep when probably a minority of people are causing problems," he said.

Hawkins offered a motion addressing only the raising of the fees, which Stanley seconded.

In response to a question from Brent, Stanley said the parks committee could consider the alcohol issue again.

Magistrate Jerry Beasley indicated the fiscal court should go ahead with action on the alcohol issue by keeping the deposit of the violators. "I think you need to add that in there, that you'll keep the deposit if there are beer cans and bottles out there and it's left dirty," Beasley said about the motion. "That's the only way you'll break it up."

He offered that as an amendment to the motion. Voting on that first, the amendment was approved.

Fiscal court members also approved the motion to raise the 4-H building fees.

New ordinance to ban vandals, bullies from Eminence's Coach D Park

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

Defacing Eminence property, swearing and bullying are all violations that can get an offender banned from Coach D Park for at least 60 days and fined up to $250.

Eminence City Council adopted rules and regulations pertaining to use of the park at their February meeting, after getting fed up with a number of acts of vandalism.

In the future, anyone caught breaking the rules for the first time could result in a 60-day suspension from the park.

Anyone caught with a second offense could be excluded from the park for two years and a third could lead to a permanent ban.

The ordinance spells out the offense of vandalism as including: defacing surfaces by writing words, pictures or markings; emptying out the trash cans; removing mulch from where it's placed; and littering.

The ordinance also prohibits using offensive language or bullying others at the park.

"Offensive language shall include the use of any commonly accepted offensive language or language used for the purpose of insulting, degrading, disparaging or inciting anger or an angry response from any person."

The ordinance specifies no bullying will be tolerated. That includes words or actions intended to intimidate, annoy, belittle or repress anyone else, as well as physical violence, intimidation or gestures that do not result in injury, the document said.

Violations under the ordinance could be brought by city employees, elected officials or police officers who witness prohibited acts, according to the ordinance.

Written statements from two people could also spark an investigation by the Eminence Police Department or other agency.

City police will keep track of violators who are banned from the park. Those who do not comply with the suspension will be charged with trespassing.

Persons can appeal a violation by writing to the city council within 10 days, the ordinance says.

Those banned from the park permanently can apply for reinstatement after two years.

Now, Eminence officials can show there will be consequences for bad behavior in Coach D Park, Mayor Drane Stephens said. This ordinance came about because of city employees repeatedly having to repair acts of vandalism at the park.

"Whether it will work or not, I'm not 100 percent sure but we had to do something," Stephens said. "What we were having was so much vandalism and absolutely no teeth in our ordinances to be able to enforce any kind of discipline."

KSP warns of phone scammers soliciting donations for fallen police

The Kentucky State Police is advising all citizens to beware of phone scams requesting financial donations for fallen police officers, according to a news release.

KSP Post 16 in Henderson has documented a number of people who reported receiving calls from someone who states he is with KSP or another police professional fundraiser. His goal is to try to obtain donations (credit or bank card information) for fallen officers who have died in the line of duty.

When asked for more information about his authenticity, he hangs up.

Complainants advise the caller may identify himself as "Rick" and calls from a 270 area code.

The investigation is in its early stages, but this number is likely a Skype account originating overseas. KSP does not and will not ask anyone for any banking or personal information.

Although KSP is currently involved in raising funds for a fallen trooper memorial, it does not engage in cold call telemarketing activities, according to the news release.

KSP recommends treating every solicitation call as a scam until proven otherwise. The best and proper way to determine the legitimacy of a charitable organization is to check with the Kentucky Attorney General's office by calling 502-696-5300 or visiting their website at: ag.ky.gov.

which Tylor Roby, 19, of Eminence was a passenger, according to information from Major O.C. Jones of Eminence Police Department.

Eminence police responded to 4717 Jackson Road, because the victim had been transported there.

Those involved told police they thought the gun had been unloaded — the magazine had been removed, but the weapon still had a bullet in it, according to Trooper Mitchel Hazelett, KSP spokesman. Those involved indicated they had been target shooting that day.

"At the time of the incident, the firearm was clear, but has since been reported stolen," Hazelett said.

The bullet passed through the seat and struck Roby in the back, according to police reports.

Doctors at the University of Louisville Trauma Center examined Roby and decided that the bullet did not get lodged in his body, Jones said. On the day the shooting occurred, Roby had gone to the Covington area to pick up some friends who needed a ride.

Trooper Steven Dykes investigated the report of the accidental shooting, as it happened in Trimble County, and he filed charges against two men.

Alexander Delgadillo, 18, of Eminence was charged with assault; wanton endangerment, first; and carrying a concealed weapon, according to KSP arrest reports. Troopers also served two bench warrants against Delgadillo.

Jonathan A. Gerding, 18, of Dry Ridge was charged with carrying a concealed weapon according to a KSP arrest report.

Before the shooting, EPD had received reports of a burglary from a home on Fallen Drive, a theft from a vehicle on North Penn and a theft from a vehicle on Elm Street, Jones said. Property taken in these incidents was valued at $1,350.

After responding to the shooting report, Jones said officers recovered items from the burglary and from the Elm Street theft, which the property owners confirmed as theirs.

EPD also contacted authorities in Covington to ask if they'd received reports of theft or burglaries involving a stolen handgun and GPS electronic devices, Jones said. Items recovered here matched reports of stolen items in Covington, police found.

As a result of the investigation, Eminence police charged Delgadillo with two counts of receiving stolen property, possession of a controlled substance (Hydrocodone) and possession of drug paraphernalia, Jones said.

Both Delgadillo and Gerding were held at the Carroll County Detention Center after their arrest.

health services at Cedar Lake who is also participating in the leadership class.

Now, the sidewalk to the pond would also improve access and expand fishing opportunities.

Each of the 12 previous leadership classes has taken on a community service project, which also included planting trees and installing benches at the recreation park, as well as restoring and displaying the courthouse clock in New Castle and adding a disc golf course at Harry Hill Park.

The idea to improve the park's accessibility arose when leadership class members visited many places while learning about Henry County, including Cedar Lake.

"When we toured Cedar Lake Park Place, I explained to them the challenges we face with our residents," Stewart said. "We have some residents who really enjoy the activity of fishing. We thought the project would not only benefit the residents, but the community as a whole.

"It will benefit anyone who uses a walker or a wheelchair and even a parent with a stroller," she added. "You can enjoy that feature of the park better. I think people who have to use assistive devices — wheelchairs, walkers and crutches — sometimes they get forgotten about."

Fundraising has begun for the project.

The Cedar Lake Foundation has agreed to work with the project and accept donations, which makes all gifts tax deductible.

The foundation has also given the project a boost by agreeing to provide a donation match of up to $5,000.

"We want to thank Cedar Lake Foundation for their participation and overwhelming support," Cindy Johnson, a member of Leadership Henry County, said. "They not only believe in their employees and the residents they serve, but the community as a whole. We are so grateful."

The sidewalk will begin at the existing walking path. As designed, it will be edged with brick and feature areas of landscaping.

As an incentive, $350 sponsors will receive an inlaid 6-by-12-inch engraved granite block in the path, and a $50 donor will receive a 4-by-8-inch engraved brick for the sidewalk's border.

"We feel it is important to take pride in our community and give back," Johnson explained. "The park is a wonderful part of Henry County and is available to all our citizens."

"This project will build on the dedicated work done by Friends for Michael in creating a wheelchair friendly play area within the park."

The leadership class will source all labor and materials for the project locally.

With assistance from the Henry County Library, the leadership class has issued a brochure with information about the project, including a form for the brick and paver engraving.

"We want every citizens and business of Henry County to have the option to participate," Johnson said. "It is a wonderful way to honor or memorialize a loved one, commemorate your business, family or yourself as being a part of this community."

"The leadership class would also like to take this opportunity to thank the Henry County Public Library for their assistance and support in developing the brochure. This has been so valuable in promoting and explaining our project."

"This Leadership Henry County Class of 2014 have certainly taken their leadership skills to a high level," Pat Wallace, who coordinates the leadership class, said.

"Not only are they still meeting each month to further coordinate their efforts, but each has taken the many tasks involved in the project and done his or her share," she added. "They are to be commended on their efforts, and this project will be done in a timely manner. I am very proud of them."

Brochures are available at the library in Eminence and at the Henry County Chamber of Commerce in New Castle.

Interested parties can make checks payable to Cedar Lake Foundation with a note in the memo line for the "HC Leadership 2014."

This little light of mine, I'm gonna let it shine

The potential of solar power has not yet seen the light of day in Kentucky, but that could change with a little prodding of the General Assembly, according to the Community Farm Alliance.

A state report card issued by the alternative energy boosters at solarpowerrocks.com website ranks Kentucky at number 46 out of 51 in the nation for facilitating solar power and assigns the Commonwealth a failing grade. Kentucky's downfall stems from the absence of a Renewables Portfolio Standard to guide adoption of alternative energies and minimal incentives to help consumers make the switch to electricity supplied by the sun.

According to the website, the one bright spot in the rankings stems from the state's net metering policy. This means there's a law on the books that allows utility customers with solar panels to get credit for feeding electricity back onto the grid.

CHRIS brooke
Editor

Net metering allowed one Kentucky school, Warren County's Richardsville Elementary — the first public school in the country to produce as much energy as it uses — to save around $8,000 a month on utility costs and to sell $37,000 worth of electricity back to the Tennessee Valley Authority, according to a WFPL report on the school's energy efficiency improvements. The school doesn't even receive an electricity bill, according to one educator quoted in the piece.

That's not the norm, of course. Energy costs usually fall as a school's second highest expense after personnel.

Richardsville Elementary received a $1.3 million American Recovery and Reinvestment Act stimulus fund grant to make the net-zero energy school a reality.

Educators with Henry County Public Schools can relate to the importance of energy efficiency, I'm sure. With less extensive upgrades than Richardsville, Henry County has become the eleventh most energy efficient school system in the state and saved $130,000 in about a year. Those are funds that went back to the classrooms to help teach children.

While solar generation certainly requires upfront investments, it makes me think of all the roofs out there that could be absorbing the sunlight and generating electricity. Instead, roofs made of shingles or coatings usually just absorb the heat, raise temperatures and make air conditioning run more in summer.

With these points in mind, when the Community Farm Alliance sent me an e-mail expressing support for several solar energy bills being considered by the legislature this term, I paid attention.

The group asked the public to contact their state representatives and lobby for the approval of:

- House Bill 349 – This bill "reauthorizes Kentucky's small but important tax incentives for energy efficiency and renewable energy through 2023. Otherwise, those credits will expire at the end of 2015."

- House Bill 229 – "This bill asks utilities in Kentucky to ramp up their renewable energy generation and energy efficiency programs over the next 10 years."

- House Bill 100 – "This bill allows local governments to create their own financing programs in support of specific types of energy efficiency and water conservation projects."

The Community Farm Alliance offered this statement from treasurer Adam Barr as to the group's support for alternative energy sources.

"Energy is one of a farmer's biggest expenses – from the electricity that powers our homes, barns and equipment to the fuel that runs our trucks, tractors and farm equipment," he said. "As a farmer, I have access to the sun, the wind and plenty of manure, I should be able to use those natural resources to power my farm and the homes of my neighbors."

Think of the benefits that converting to solar would contribute, not only schools but also big box stores and even homes, to creating cleaner energy.

There are 140,000 school facilities out there in the United States, spending a combined $8 billion to pay for electricity to consume, according to Kathleen Rogers, president and CEO of the Earth Day Network.

The impulse in Kentucky as far as energy production goes in the face of greater acceptance of alternative energies seems to involve protecting the coal mining industry from losing market share.

That stance ignores which part of the energy sector has greater job creation potential between coal and solar. According to Forbes, 31,000 new jobs were created among solar companies in the United States during 2014, bringing the total to 173,807. Coal mining employs 93,185.

I don't think fighting a rearguard action to save more coal jobs will prove nearly as fruitful as state leaders adopting a more progressive stance for solar.

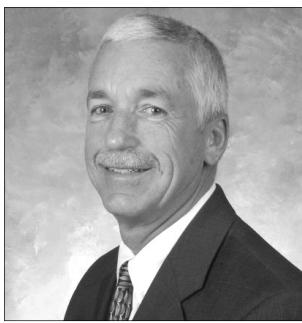

I think it's time to let the light shine in on the Bluegrass State.

Senate sends several bills to House

As we approach the final days of the 2015 Legislative Session, we have been working diligently to complete our consideration of Senate bills while also vetting legislation that has been passed by the House. We will begin considering several additional House bills next week.

A major focus for both chambers this week was the approach to combat heroin in the Commonwealth. The House's measure was presented in the Senate Committee on Judiciary on Wednesday, and our Senate Bill 5 was discussed in the House Judiciary Committee on Thursday; both were informational hearings only.

It is imperative that we find common ground on this legislation and make an impact on the heroin epidemic that has plagued so many

Paul Hornback
Ky. Senator

Kentuckians over the past few years. As the Senate president stated, this session will be judged on whether or not heroin legislation is passed. The fact that both chambers had informational hearings is a positive step in protecting Kentucky families.

While heroin continues to be the focal point, plenty of other significant bills passed this week. From technical changes and statutory updates, to legislation that was the fruition of years of work, the Senate continued to move bills with the intent of creating Kentucky jobs and strengthening Kentucky families.

The Senate also passed measures to save money through efficient elections, and to create a debt limit. Senate Bill 93 would move all elections of Kentucky's statewide constitutional officers to even-numbered years along with federal elections. By doing this, state and local governments would save a great deal of money. Because the elections would coincide with federal elections, voter turnout would also likely increase. Statistics prove that more voters go to the polls for the federal elections.

The Senate Majority is resolved to keep debt reigned in and keep government accountable to current and future taxpayers. Senate Bill 94 would address this in addition to working in favor of the Kentucky Employees Retirement System by limiting the issuance of general fund-supported debt, calculating the debt limitation savings and transferring the savings to the non-hazardous employee unfunded liability trust fund.

We also passed Senate Bill 143, which I sponsored, that would include bees in the definition of "livestock." Through this measure, we can strengthen our state's agriculture industry.

Several bills now move to the House for their consideration. If you have any questions or comments about the issues or any other public policy issues, please call me toll-free at 1-800-372-7181. You can also review additional bills passed by the legislature online at www.lrc.ky.gov.

Harvest Showcase committee asks for more community support

MELISSA blankenship

Henry County has a proud farming heritage. Never have I seen it more appropriately on display than at the annual Henry County Harvest Showcase.

I have had the distinct pleasure of attending this event under myriad conditions. I have served with the Chamber at the breakfast. I've attended as a reporter and photographer for the Local. Once or twice I've been able to attend strictly as a spectator. But more often, I've been a Farmer's Market vendor.

In all my experiences with the Showcase, I've been pleased with the coordination of the event, with the level of planning that obviously went into making the event seamless on the day of, and with the energy and enthusiasm of its committee members, who have put in countless hours to ensure the Showcase is enjoyed by all, regardless of the reason for their attendance.

The committee, comprised of a very dedicated core group of volunteers, is asking Henry County to pitch in and make sure we can continue to offer this amazing event that brings thousands in the county. They need more help to continue to make it happen.

It would be an absolute shame for the Harvest Showcase to be discontinued. But that is a possibility. New committee members and a renewed level of support from the community is needed urgently.

As a proud member of this community and of the farming community of Henry County, I don't want to see that happen.

Please join me in attending a committee meeting on March 6 at noon at the Extension Office. No special skills required, just a willingness to be a part of something incredible that truly showcases our agricultural roots.

For more information or to pledge your support, call John Logan Brent at 845-5707.

Wagons painted above the door.

On the second floor between the windows, painted vertically, the shop also advertised the availability of harnesses, saddles and collars.

Signs in the window show the proprietors could work on vehicles in their garage and install Fisk Tires. A sidewalk-level sign promotes DeLaval Cream Separators.

Those familiar with early American vehicles can probably give an approximate date for the photo by identifying what kind of automobile is parked out front.

But that's about as many clues as history holds of what's been known for at least the last half century as the New Castle Frozen Food Locker.

The historic facility still stands, after a major overhaul by the city stabilized the structure.

Visitors can see the new elements added inside from the concrete footers on the first level, which hold up wooden beams with cross pieces to support the second floor, as well as sturdy looking, horizontal I-beams that brace the vertical posts and tie into the front wall.

Wooden beams on the second floor hold up the roof joists through which sheets of new plywood are visible, making the base of the new roof.

"All we know is this building was probably built in the 1870s or '80s," Joe Yates, who is currently serving as president of the Henry County Historical Society, noted. "It was an implement company — they used to make the buggies and all that stuff here on site."

According to handed down memories, workers assembled the buggies on the second level and lowered them down when finished through a big opening in the middle of the floor. The hole has been covered up in the renovation.

Yates and Thoke discussed whether the photo could prove the storefront once featured a cast iron façade fabricated by either Geo. L. Mesker & Co. of Evansville, Ind., or perhaps Mesker Brothers of St. Louis, as several other commercial buildings around New Castle from that era were.

It's possible, but the front wall has since been refashioned out of block. Thoke speculated the iron columns that framed the front door shown in the photo may still be embedded in the later facade, as the columns would have provided structural support.

From at least the 1950s on, the facility became identified by its use as a meat locker, Yates and Thoke said.

Beyond the two photos, historians can only read what the building itself, declared historically and architecturally significant, tells about its own and about New Castle's history.

The renovation preserved one of the more curious structural details — the front two vertical wooden posts were cut off near the ceiling.

Metal bars attached to the floor joists above ran underneath the cut and held up the truncated posts.

Thoke surmised that somebody needed more clear space on the first floor and came up with this novel solution to get it.

The recent past, since New Castle took ownership of the building about a decade ago, is much more tangible.

That the Locker still exists is a testament to the New Castle City Commission securing a grant through the Renaissance program during the Paul Patton administration, Yates and Thoke said. A crowd attended a town hall meeting at the 4-H building about what they wanted to see developed in the Locker and arrived at the consensus of a linen-cloth restaurant.

This process led to New Castle participating in the Main Street Program, creating a historic district and hiring a Main Street Manager, Yates said. The city applied for downtown development grant through the heritage council and received $250,000 to prepare the Locker for a tenant.

New Castle spent $50,000 to buy the building and between $20,000 and $30,000 on architectural services, Yates said.

"The intent was to develop it into a restaurant but the money only went far enough to put a good roof on and stabilize the building," he said, explaining all the new work.

Grant conditions allowed for the city to attract a restaurant, he added. If the restaurant would commit to remain there and keep operating, then New Castle could deed the building over to the business owner.

"That obviously didn't happen for a variety of reasons," Yates said. "One of (Thoke's) predecessors would bring people out here, after the Locker got finished, people in the restaurant business from Louisville, to try to entice them, to interest them in being here."

"They would ask if we were wet. We would say no and they would go, 'Don't call us, we'll call you.'"

As of now, the Locker remains available for public use for a $100 rental charge, Thoke noted. It has hosted Henry County Chamber of Commerce dinners, Christmas in New Castle, movie nights, a haunted house, a supper club dinner, arts and crafts shows, birthday parties and more.

"We would like it to be used more — the more activities we have in town the better," he said. "You can't beat the price for $100 bucks."

It's good to have the Locker available for public activities and rentals, agreed Linda Golden, the New Castle city commissioner who also serves on the economic development committee. It's also a good thing to have the building available for possible future economic development uses.

"We are getting ready to put a sign out that has the name of the Locker on it," she said. Golden would also see a little "for rent" sign out front, too.

"I'm okay with it being for rent right now, because I think it's going to be utilized a lot more," she said. "But I would like to see a business to come in there, eventually."

A restaurant would be acceptable, but whatever that eventual business may be should fit well with the character of New Castle.

While there are no candidates at this point, Golden could also imagine the possibility of selling to the right people.

"It's got to be special for a historic town," she said. "I want the town to stay historic. I don't want some fly-by-night place to come in there, something so modern it looks out of place. I just want the town to stay quaint, but I want businesses in there."

For now, Thoke would like to know more about the Locker and implement company, but a detailed written source doesn't exist.

"This building's just a mystery," Yates said.

"If any one had any information on the building, any old photographs, it'd be fun to fill in the gaps from the time it was built until today," Thoke said. "The city really needs to be complimented for doing this because they saved an integral part of this block that otherwise would be gone. Main Street, we're all about preservation and also revitalization — those two words go hand in hand."

Kentucky State honors student conference featured Craigmyle

Kentucky State University's Whitney Young School of Honors and Liberal Studies hosted the 2015 Kentucky Honors Roundtable on Feb. 27 and Feb. 28, involving one student from Henry County, Ashley Craigmyle.

This unique event gave honors students the opportunity to present research, participate in discussion panels, and interact with other honors students from other Kentucky public universities and colleges — Eastern Kentucky University, Northern Kentucky University, Morehead State University, Murray State University, University of Louisville, Western Kentucky University and Henderson Community College.

The event included a

Feb. 27 community dinner in the Carl M. Hill Student Center, followed by tours of the History Museum and the Old State Capitol in downtown Frankfort.

The students spent Feb. 28 in KSU's Carver Hall and KSU's Jackson Hall, analyzing literature, listening to lectures and discussing topics such as technology, political campaigns, international issues, science and research, history, art, film, sports and philosophy.

The presentations came from student term papers, research papers, senior theses and posters. This provided honors students with an opportunity to discuss their research with fellow students and faculty.

Eleven KSU honors students in the Whitney

Young School of Honors gave presentations — Jean Branttie, Alyxandria Chaivre, Ashley Craigmyle, Reid Goins, Alaina Goodlett, Travis Lafollette, Ian Ries, Anneke Vermeulen, Rebecca Waddle, Raven Watkins and Alyson Whitted.

Topics ranged from war and preservation of art, the complex nature of prophecy, the surprisingly vital role of women in ancient literature, the nature of love, an analysis of works of world literature from the existentialist perspectives of Kierkegaard and Nietzsche, the application of Plato's principle of justice to Greek tragedies, and the different interpretations of Harry Potter "on the page and on the screen."

Biggest Loser weight loss program begins soon

On March 16, the North Central District Health Department, University of Kentucky Henry County Extension Office and the Henry County KIPDA Rural Diabetes Coalition are joining together to offer the Henry County Biggest Loser Challenge. The program will run until May 11.

The participants will be given basic nutrition education provided by a registered and licensed dietitian, information about exercise, motivation to make healthier lifestyle choices and much more. The program is free to all participants to join with the opportunity to win a cash prize for the winner.

1. The initial weigh-in and registration will take place March 16. The location is Henry Christian Church.

Weigh-ins will begin at 6 p.m.

The meeting to provide guidelines for the program will begin at 6:30 p.m. and end at 7:30 p.m.

We will remain an additional 30 minutes to obtain the needed information.

Late registrations will be accepted; however, it will reduce one's time to compete.

2. There will be other possibilities for weigh-in times after the initial weigh-in. However, the classes will be Monday nights from 7 to 8 p.m. with weigh-in at 6:30 p.m. at Henry Christian Church.

For those not weighing in on Monday nights, there will be weigh-ins at Henry Christian Church from 12:30 – 1:30 p.m. on Sundays starting on March 22.

There will be no weigh-in on Easter and Mother's Day Sundays. Additionally, you may weigh in at the Henry County Extension Service on Mondays from 9 until 11 a.m.

Participants are encouraged to weigh-in on a consistent day, but may weigh-in at alternate location or time, if there is a schedule conflict.

3. We are planning great educational and motivational classes.

Studies show that support and education encourage lifestyle changes.

Please consider making this important to the program.

4. There is no charge to register.

Folks may join with other team members or if one does not have a team, there will be an opportunity to join one.

You do not have to be on a team to do the program, however accountability and motivation is greater with teamwork.

Teams should decide upon a team captain that will promote support and accountability.

5. There are no weekly fees. Our goal is to learn about healthy lifestyles and make it available to all citizens of Henry County. You must be at least 18 years old.

6. Participants are encouraged to consult with their health care provider before starting this program to keep him/her advised of plans and progress.

7. There is a website for Henry County Biggest Loser. You may visit the site and ask to be added.

8. The grand prizewinner(s) will be determined by the amount donated by the community.

There will be small incentives on a weekly basis according to the donations.

9. The winner(s) of the program will be determined by the greatest percentage of weight lost.

10. The last meeting is May 11 and one must be present to win.

11. The organizers of this contest are: Maryellen Garrison (Henry County Extension Service), Amanda Stoess (North Central District Health Department), Mona Huff (KIPDA Rural Diabetes Coalition & Henry Christian Church) Amy Yount and Traci Noe (Henry Christian Church).

12. Participants will hold harmless Henry Christian Church, Henry County Extension Service, North Central District Health Department, KIPDA Rural Diabetes Coalition and all contest organizers for any liability.

The decision to participate in the Henry County Biggest Loser Contest is made at your own risk.

We would like to invite local businesses and individuals to participate in our Biggest Loser Challenge by providing donations to help encourage participants to succeed in their weight loss.

Your donation will be used for the cash prize incentive for the participant with the most overall weight loss (based on percentage).

We would also appreciate any services or gift cards that your company may offer.

Examples might include gym membership, massages and personal training sessions.

Any donation would be greatly appreciated to help motivate the community to become healthier.

The obesity rate throughout the state of Kentucky is increasing rapidly.

With guidance, education, and motivation, the community can become healthier and more motivated to make important lifestyle changes.

If you would be willing to make a contribution for our biggest loser winner, please contact Amanda Stoess with North Central District Health Department at 502-633-1243 or Mona Huff, Henry County Community Organizer at 502-706-0098 (cell) or 502-845-6849, no later than March 9.

Educational programs of Kentucky Cooperative Extension serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

Ag Tag makes a difference for Henry County 4-H

Kentucky 4-H is one of the most important and influential youth programs in our state and our county.

Across Kentucky over 256,000 youth ages 9 to 19 learn about leadership, citizenship and life skills in "learn-by-doing" experiences such as communications and public speaking, through agriculture projects like livestock judging, science projects with robotics, 4-H camp, Teen Conference and many other 4-H programs and activities.

Here in Henry County thousands of youth participate annually in project clubs, afterschool clubs, special interest programs, school enrichment clubs and camping programs.

Extension Notes

4-H Youth Development

Cathy Toole
Henry County Extension Office

These 4-H programs provide opportunities to our youth and train the next generation of leaders for Kentucky's communities.

Many of today's farmers learned valuable lessons while growing up as members of 4-H. Now there is an easy way farmers can help support the 4-H program that is so valuable to our community, our county and most importantly, our youth.

As you renew your farm license plates at the county clerk's office, please make the $10 donation, a third of which goes directly to support 4-H programs and activities.

I wanted to remind you now about the program since all farm license plates are renewed in March. The Ag Tag Program is supported by Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture James Comer.

The money raised by the program is evenly split between Kentucky

4-H, Kentucky FFA, and Kentucky Proud, which promotes agricultural products raised, grown or processed in Kentucky by Kentuckians.

Last year Kentucky 4-H received $169,280.21, from the Ag Tag Program.

These funds are split between the county where the funds originated and the Kentucky 4-H Foundation for state level programs.

Half of the 4-H share support programs right here in our county, making this a great opportunity for the local 4-H council, clubs and members to increase financial support for their programs.

The other half is used by the Kentucky 4-H Foundation to support state level programs that many of our 4-H members participate in which furthers their positive experiences and opportunities for advanced leadership, citizenship and life-skills development.

Making your $10 donation is an excellent opportunity for our agricultural community to support the youth of our community and help fund the programs that can make a lasting difference in their lives.

Kentucky 4-H gives Kentucky's young people the chance to participate in constructive, educational and fun activities that teach them the value of hard work, discipline and participation.

Kentucky 4-H youth are doing the right thing by breaking through obstacles while pushing our country, our state and our county forward by making a measurable difference right where they live.

Kentucky 4-H has been given a tremendous opportunity by Commissioner Comer to raise significant funds to support 4-H.

But the scale of this success will be up to all of us in the 4-H family and how we promote and encourage our friends, alumni and communities to step up and support 4-H through the voluntary donation.

Please remember to make your $10 donation when renewing each of your farm license plates in March. It will make a difference in the lives of our youth.

The contest is sponsored by the University of Kentucky Family and Consumer Science Department. Youth are encouraged to design a bank from recycled materials. Deadline for Conservation Stewardship Program extended to March 13

Natural Resources Conservation Service Chief Jason Weller today announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture is offering a renewal option through Tuesday, March 31, for eligible agricultural producers and forest landowners with expiring Conservation Stewardship Program (CSP) contracts.

These producers must be willing to adopt additional conservation activities aimed at helping them achieve higher levels of conservation on their farms, forests and ranches.

Changes in the 2014 Farm Bill will allow CSP participants with expiring contracts to renew them by exceeding stewardship thresholds for two or more existing natural resource concerns specified by the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) or by meeting stewardship thresholds for at least two new natural resource concerns such as improving water quality or soil health.

The renewal process is optional but benefits CSP participants with expiring contracts because it is non-competitive.

The 2014 Farm Bill includes an expanded conservation activity list that offers producers more options to address natural resource challenges.

New conservation activities include cover crops, intensive rotational grazing and wildlife-friendly fencing.

Along with the renewal option announced today, USDA announced last month that it will make available $100 million this year through the CSP in 2015.

Although CSP applications are accepted all year, farmers, ranchers and forest landowners should submit applications by the funding deadline, extended to Friday, March 13, to ensure they are considered for this year's funding.

"We're extending the deadline for applications to CSP to provide agricultural producers more time to complete their applications," said Kentucky's State Conservationist Karen Woodrich. "From improving soil health to sending cleaner water downstream, this program is improving the environment in Kentucky and across the nation," she added.

Landowners in Kentucky have enrolled over 200,000 acres into CSP.

To learn more about CSP visit the NRCS website or visit a USDA Service Center near you.

Beekeepers school to be held March 7

The annual Bluegrass Beekeepers School will be held at Kentucky State University in Frankfort on March 7.

The school normally attracts more than 350 beekeepers from across the state. Registration for the day-long event begins at 8 a.m. with the first session at 9 a.m.

The keynote for the school will be delivered by Dr. Subba Reddy Palli, a professor at the University of Kentucky, addressing "Development of RNA Interference as a Bee-safe Pest Control Method."

The research, as described in a New York Times article of January 28, attempts to develop target-specific pesticides, based on an identified genetic sequence unique to one species, so as to kill a pest without harming beneficial insects. This might allow a pest control agent to kill mites without harming the bees.

Other sessions through the day will address hive management, queen rearing, controlling pests, using and marketing hive products, use of different hive equipment and planting for pollinators.

A series of "Beginner Beekeeping Classes" will provide essential knowledge for those just beginning in the hobby.

More information is available at the Bluegrass Beekeepers website: <http://bluegrassbeekeepers.blogspot.com/>.

Registration at the event is $35 including lunch.

throws down the stretch to seal the first round victory and move on to play Owen County in the semifinals.

“Coleton Aneszko did a great job of looking up the floor and getting us some easy buckets and good decisions,” Welch said of his senior guard.

He was also pleased with the play of Watson and Heightchew.

“Mason had some big threes that got them out of their zone and Jacob hit a big three at the end of the first quarter to give us some momentum,” Welch said.

Carroll County ended their season with a 10-16 record. Henry County improved to 12-17.

“We have a tremendous task ahead with Owen County in the next round,” Welch said. “But not only are we ready, we’re excited to play them. Games like this is what the postseason is all about.”

Owen Co. 61 HCHS 42

Owen County came into the game with Henry County having won the first two matchups between the teams by an average of 18 points. Henry County had yet to lose their second leading scorer, Jackson Jeffries, to a season-ending foot injury when those games were played.

The Wildcats, however, gave a good performance in the opening half before Owen County pulled away in the third period to win comfortably.

The game opened with both teams executing their offensive sets patiently while trying to find weaknesses in their opponents’ defense.

Owen County scored the first four points of the game before Henry County got a layup from Jameson to make it 4-2 with 6:12 left. A Wills runner in the lane made it 4-4 30 seconds later and the teams traded baskets most of the rest of the period before Owen County scored the last five points to make it 16-11 going into the second period.

The Rebels final basket of the first period was a 21-foot 3-pointer by Chad McDonald with 2 seconds left.

Owen increased the lead to eight points at 22-14 with 5:06 left in the first half on another 3-pointer.

With 1:08 left the Rebels hit two free throws to increase their lead to nine points at 26-17.

The Wildcats’ Devin McIntosh hit a 3-pointer with 40 seconds left to make it 26-20 but the Rebels got the last laugh when they scored on a drive with 17 seconds left to make it an 8-point lead going into the locker room.

“We started the game well,” Welch said. “We matched their intensity, played good defense and executed our offense well. We probably did everything right except hit our free throws.”

The Rebels came out on fire in the third period and outscored the Wildcats 17-6 to lead by 19 going into the final period of play.

Henry County went ice-cold from the field during the period, missing several easy baskets after running well-executed plays. They also missed all four free throw attempts during the period. The Wildcats finished the game 5 of 17 from the charity stripe.

“We came out in the second half and gave up a quick bucket, then executed well and missed a couple of easy shots and missed our free throws and they just got away from us,” Welch said.

The Wildcats continued to play hard during the final period and managed to play evenly with Owen County but the damage had already been done.

“In a game where the ball is not dropping and you are keeping yourself in it with defense, you have to hit your free throws and we didn’t do that,” Welch said. “They are 24 and five for a reason. You can’t have shots not going in and miss free throws and beat them.”

The Rebels were led in scoring by their junior star Carson Williams, who had 25 points in the game, including two rim-rattling dunks that brought the crowd to its feet. Vince Toftness added 13 points for the Rebels.

Henry County was led in scoring by Jameson, who had 15 points, and Wills, who had 11 points.

Welch paid tribute to his seniors, Jackson Jeffries, Brennen Peniston, Coleton Aneszko and Jacob Buckley, after the game.

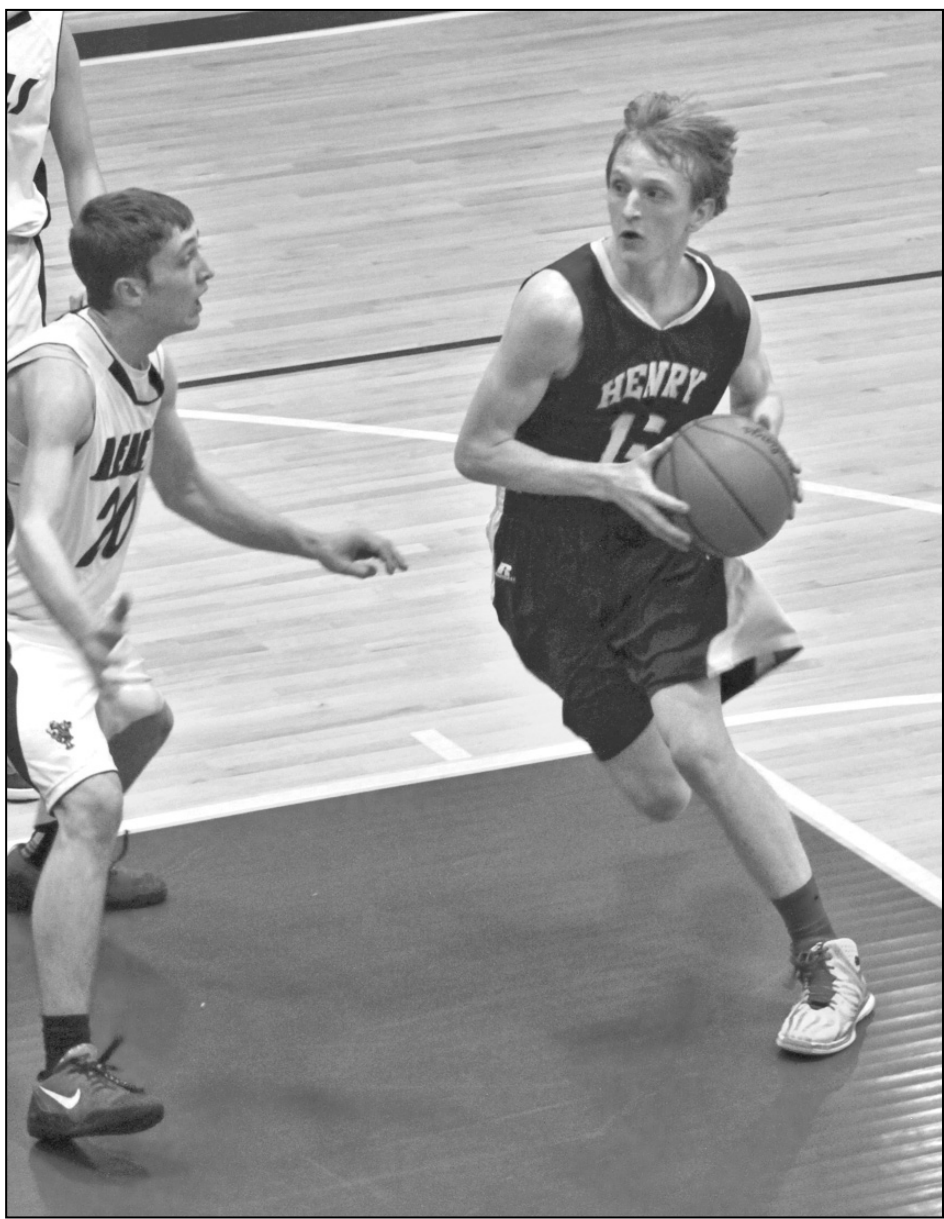

“We had four seniors that have been outstanding for this program,” he said. “They were winless in middle school, but they came in and had good freshman and sophomore seasons and then won the JV district tournament last year.

“They came out and competed. There were not many games that we were not in. We won 12 games and lost seven more that came down to the last possession.

“This is the first group I’ve had for all four years and I am extremely proud of them,” Welch continued. “There is absolutely no quit in those kids.”

3-pointer,” Nethery said.

The Warriors again fouled Wilson to stop the clock and he hit both free throws to make it a four-point game.

With 21 seconds left McCubbins came up with a big block on a drive by Mitchell. From there the Warriors failed to score again and the Wildcats continued to hit their free throws to set the final margin at eight points.

Jenkins added 14 points for the Warriors and Jake McKinley had 12 points.

Caleb Beckham had 22 points for the Wildcats and McCubbins added 14 points.

“We didn’t want it to end this way, obviously, but we gave a good effort,” Nethery said. “It was disappointing.”

When asked if the layoff had affected his team Nethery said, “The layoff caused some game rust but most teams in the state had to deal with it. That’s not an excuse. We played hard and gave a good effort but execution wasn’t always there. We missed plenty of easy buckets we should have hit.”

Nethery paid tribute to his five players who played their final game for the Warriors, Bailey, Mitchell, Hanlon, Trevor Payton and Alex Perdue.

“We had seniors who had long layoffs with injuries – Justin and Trevor – they fought back,” Nethery said. “They have no quit in them. Alex just came into our program this year and he really bought into our system. I wish we had more time with him.”

“Tyrei went through a period where he wasn’t getting much playing time but he stuck with it and really helped us down the stretch. It was unfortunate that DeMarcus was hurt tonight. He was playing the best ball of his career. I wish we had longer with all of them. This is the toughest time of the year when you have to say goodbye to these kids.

“But each and every one of them will be successful because they will work hard. They are the same in the classroom as they are on the floor. They are competitive and want to do well.”

The Warriors ended the season with a record of 11-14 while Gallatin County improved to 9-17 and moved into the district final against Owen County.

Aly Stanley to play softball for Spaulding

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hcclocal.com

Aly Stanley will play softball at Spaulding University next year.

That announcement was made at a special signing ceremony held in the Henry County High School library Friday afternoon.

Stanley, who has pitched, played shortstop and outfield for the Lady Cats, signed with Spaulding while family, friends and teammates looked on.

Stanley has been named to the all-district team three times. She has made the all-region team once and made the all-NCKC team twice.

Last year she was named to the East-West All-star team that was composed of players from the Louisville Metro area.

Stanley said two factors played a key role in her decision.

“I really like the way their school calendar is set up,” Stanley said. “And the coach showed more interest in helping get financial aid than other coaches. I also like that I will be close to home.”

Stanley said it was good to sign before the season started because that alleviated some stress that might be a distraction during her final season of high school softball.

Stanley is excited to play in a competitive conference with Spaulding.

“They just moved from NAIA to NCAA Division III and play in a very good conference,” she said. “They have been competitive ever since they moved into the conference.”

Excitement isn’t the only thing Stanley is feeling about playing in college.

“I’m excited, but obviously I’m also nervous about playing at the next level,” she said. “It helps knowing I have a former teammate, Krista DeBurger, playing at the same level who is having success.”

Lady Cat coach Jon Kasten has no misgivings about Stanley’s ability to play at the next level.

“Spaulding is getting a good player, a good leader and a very good young lady,” Kasten said. “It’s been a pleasure to coach her for four years. I have no doubt that she’ll be very successful at Spaulding.”

Healthy Lifestyle Center Member

Terry Stallard had a heart attack while playing in a 60+ basketball league. Following open heart surgery, his doctors sent him to the Healthy Lifestyle Center. Terry says classes offered at the center boosted his recovery, especially those on diet and stress. He regained his strength and stamina very quickly.

“The staff at the center,” he says, “are great to work with, encouraging, and they worked at my pace.” The results speak for themselves.

At a recent basketball tournament, Terry was named MVP.

said. "She did a very good job of handling their pressure and getting to the basket."
Medley added six points for the Lady Cats and Sophie Hughes chipped in five points as the Lady Cats got scoring from 10 different players. "We are excited about the fact that with all 13 players, when we sub we don't lose any intensity," Gilley said. "Our young kids are very intense and aggressive."
Gilley also had praise for his lone senior, Payton, who has upped her game in the second half of the season. "Megan has shown why she has become not only a good player, but a leader," he said.
Adair was also pleased with the progress his young team made. "I think we have improved in every area this season," he said.
"Our passing has come a long way since the beginning of the season. You could also tell towards the end of the season that we were finally starting to learn how to play the game. But more important than any fundamental skill, as the season went on, we started to compete. We were putting together some quarters and halves of really good basketball against some of the better teams we played and that was awesome to see because it starts with competing, then everything else will fall into place."
Adair paid tribute to his lone senior, Destany Crawford. "Destany was great for us on the court this year," he said. "She played hard in practice and in games. She was the most physical player we had and that was important because we are a very small team."

"More importantly, she was a great leader for us on and off the court. She made our jobs as coaches easier. The girls looked up to her and she was a great role model. She set a great example for the girls for what is expected of them as players in this program. She will be missed."
Adair is looking forward to continued progress for his team. "We have made great strides these past two years and I think our future is bright," he said. "I'm looking forward to a summer of hard work in the gym to continue the progress of building this program."
The Warriors ended the season with a 9-15 record. Henry County improved to 9-16 on the season.
Gallatin Co. 69
HCHS 46
The first period was decisive in the Lady Cats' semifinal matchup against Gallatin County. The Lady Wildcats from Warsaw jumped out to a 13-0 lead in the first three minutes of the game and never looked back in rolling to the 23-point win.
Gallatin went on to lead 24-7 at the end of the first period as stand-outs Hannah Dossett and Autumn Bowen combined for 14 points.
The Lady Cats struggled with Gallatin County's full court press and didn't score until Tuggle hit a layup with 5:18 left. The Lady Cats had five turnovers in the first four minutes of the game and six for the period.
"I thought for us to have a chance to beat Gallatin County we had to have a good start like we did when we played them in the regular season," Gilley said. "Unfortunately, we looked a little nervous to start the game. When you are nervous you have a tendency to stand around."

The Lady Cats settled down in the second period and played better the rest of the game. But the damage had been done. "After the first period, I thought we played extremely hard," Gilley said. "We played with a lot of pride and character."

Payton was dominant inside with 19 points and Sarah Forcee had a strong second half showing to finish with 12 points.
Gilley paid tribute to Payton, his only senior.

"It is easy to see that Megan has developed over her career as much as anyone we ever had here, both on and off the court," he said.
He also was proud of his team's progress over the course of the season. "Our team this season also made great strides," Gilley said. "We had one person who played significant minutes last year. We had very little playing experience going into the season. By the end of the year, we thought we were a very competitive team."

Dossett finished with 23 points for Gallatin County and Bowen scored 15 points.
The Lady Cats finished the season with a 9-17 record while Gallatin County, the 8th Region All A champions and state All A semifinalists, improved to 18-8.

Cats down Panthers; Lose to Rebels

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Henry County Wildcats used a patient attack and solid defense to win their matchup with Carroll County, 48-34, in the first round of the 31st District tournament Monday night.

The smaller Panthers played a zone defense that packed the paint and forced Henry County to move the ball patiently to find openings. The Cats got good 3-point shooting in the first period from Mason Heightchew and Jacob Watson to help loosen the Panthers' defense.

The Cats held a 12-8 lead late in the first quarter when Watson hit a long range bomb off a set play at the buzzer to give the Cats a seven-point lead heading into the second period.

The Cats stretched the lead to 10 points at 26-16 by half-time. Watson and Heightchew's shooting in the first period were keys to loosening the Panther's zone in the second period so that Gavin Jameson could go to work inside. Jameson had eight of the Cats' 11 points in the second period.

"We played within ourselves and didn't force the issue but remained aggressive," HCHS coach Enoch Welch said.

The Panthers reverted to playing in the paint to start the second period but the Cats refused to take hurried shots and, even though the Panthers managed to cut three points off the lead, they had to come out and start playing man-to-man defense.

Jameson, who finished with 16 points, scored two inside buckets to open the scoring in the fourth period and give Henry County an 11-point lead.

After Carroll County sank two free throws with 5:35 left, Trey Wills answered with a 3-pointer to give the Cats a 40-28 lead with 5:30 left. Wills finished as the Cats' second leading scorer behind Jameson with 15 points.

"Gavin and Trey were a great one, two punch for us tonight," Welch said.

From that point the Cats played patient and took care of the ball as the Panthers pressed to try and get back in the game.

Final two minutes doom Warriors

The Gallatin County Wildcats got a big boost from an unlikely source in the final minutes of a closely contested 31st District semifinal game to beat the host Eminence Warriors 62-54.

The Wildcats' Mason Wilson contributed two points to the offense through the first three quarters of the game but poured in 13 points in the final period to help Gallatin County pull away from the Warriors in the last two minutes to get the win.

Justin Mitchell, the Warriors' senior forward, tied the score at 49 with 2:13 left on a 3-pointer. Mitchell led the Warriors with 16 points and scored all of his points after DeMarcus Bailey went down with an ankle injury early in the second period.

"We always preach next man up," EHS coach Chris Nethery said. "Tyrei Hanlon stepped up and played well defensively in place of DeMarcus and Justin Mitchell stepped up his game. Justin probably had the best all-around game of anybody. Andrew Coomes also came in and gave us depth inside in an unexpected situation."

Eminence called timeout after Mitchell hit his 3-pointer but the Wildcats got a big 3-point play inside from Noah McCubbins right after the timeout to regain the lead.

The Warriors got two free throws from Mitchell on their next possession to make it 52-51 with 1:34 to play.

Wilson then scored on a twisting, acrobatic runner in the lane to restore the Wildcats' three-point lead.

Wilson made several big plays for them,"

Nethery said. "He had several drives but he also dished it off to McCubbins and Beckham for big buckets. We were worried about him. He had some good games leading into this one."

On the Warriors' next possession Wilson stole the ball and the Warriors were forced to foul. Wilson calmly stepped to the line and sank both free throws to make it 56-51 with 59 seconds left.

The Warriors brought the ball down the floor and called timeout to set up a play. Nethery, designed the play to get Kemryn Jenkins open for a 3-pointer and the Warriors executed to perfection with Jenkins hitting the wide-open shot on the right wing to make the score 56-54 with 42 seconds to go.

"I was pleased with our late-game execution out of the timeout when we set up Kemryn for that

Lady Cats' season ends against Gallatin

Lady Cats roll past Warriors; Fall to Gallatin in semifinals

The Henry County Lady Cats got off to slow start but used good defense and the inside scoring of Megan Payton to pull away from Eminence for a 49-14 win in the 31st District tournament.

The Lady Cats managed just seven points in the first period as the Warriors packed their zone defense around the 6'1" Payton to try and stop her potent inside game. But the Lady Cats' defense smothered the Warriors' offense as Eminence managed just three points from point guard Emilie Ethington.

"We moved very slowly in the first period," HCHS coach Todd Gilley said. "We played like we didn't want to make a mistake instead of playing aggressively."

The Lady Cats' defense was even stingier in the second period as they blanked the Warriors while getting their offense going for 16 points to lead 23-3 going into half-time. Payton had seven of her game-high 18 points in the second period.

"Once we became aggressive, we put ourselves in the flow of the game better," Gilley said.

The Lady Cats continued to pour on the defensive pressure in the third period and increased their lead to 40-6 going into the final period of play. Payton had five points while Savannah Medley and Aleah Tuggle had four points in the period.

"Anytime we can hold an opponent to a low scoring output you have to attribute that to your defensive intensity," Gilley said. "They took pride in their defense."

Ethington had the only three points for the Warriors in the third period.

"The big key for us was not being able to handle their defensive pressure," EHS coach Zach Adair said. "We didn't handle the press very well, like we did the last time we played them. They also turned up the pressure in the half court and forced us into some turnovers. They were the more physical team all the way through."

The Lady Cats got everyone on the team involved in the action in the fourth period as they cruised to the semifinal round against Gallatin County.

Ethington led the Warriors with 10 points, while Madison Dockter and Kenya Vargas contributed two points apiece.

"Emilie was our only offense tonight," Adair
